Sample Speaking Programs: Don't see a topic that matches your group's needs? Leslie will work with you to create a custom presentation to fit your organization's needs.

Raising Problem Solvers vs. Direction Followers - How do we get our children to take ownership, responsibility and accountability of their time and tasks? How can we as educators and parents stop telling them what to do and when? Leslie's signature "coach approach" can help YOU help your child develop individualized and achievable plans to address issues, devise manageable steps to reach goals, and learn strategies and techniques that foster independence and competency. We will explore some of the tools needed to help strengthen your child's brain so that they can build habits, routines and memory skills.

10:00PM: Don't You Have Homework to Do? Organizing Strategies for Student Success - Leslie will open the door to the world of organization and time management, what it really means, why they are life skills and not just school skills and why your student doesn't get it. Learn innovative and out-of-the box tips, tools and techniques that provide guidance for parents looking to help their student understand, develop and implement these essential life skills.

Late, Lost & Lagging Behind: Demystifying Executive Functions - Executive function skills are so connected to how our students learn and act. Leslie will break down Executive Functions and explain how they control EVERYTHING we do. She will explain how they affect our students and provide practical strategies and solutions to help conquer organization, time management and focusing weaknesses. Leslie will break down the six core Executive Functions, explain how they control EVERYTHING we do, and detail specific scaffolding, strategies and systems to offer support for each one. She will explain how they affect our student and adult clients and provide practical solutions using case studies to help conquer organization, time management, procrastination and focusing weaknesses.

Kick Procrastination to the Curb: Tools to Get You or Your Student Unstuck and Started - Leslie will delve deep into the different types of procrastination, how "mood" is one of the leading causes of procrastination and how techniques like "time travel" and "define and assign" can help you get unstuck and started. She will share real solutions and strategies to help your group or your student initiate, sustain effort and use their environment for motivation.

It's About Time: Systems and Strategies for Conquering What Gets in Our Way - Time is one of our most precious resources, yet we battle daily to make the best use of it. In this workshop, Leslie will address how to maximize your productivity while learning to pinpoint where you need to take control. In addition, group members will create their own "Personal Time Profile" to improve focus and performance when juggling projects and priorities. You'll also learn how to identify time robbers and how to eliminate them. Using case studies, Leslie will discuss the difference between time management and motivation management and tips for avoiding interruptions.

The "Cost" of Living in The Clutter Culture - With the prevalence of Marie Kondo, minimalism and the "experience" movement in the popular media, clutter and our relationship to it is more popular than ever before. In this workshop, Leslie Josel, organizing expert and guest hoarding specialist from the hit show "Hoarders: Buried Alive," will discuss how much our clutter is truly costing us in time, money and space, the effect it has on us emotionally, and how organizing and managing these possessions has grown into a billion-dollar industry. Leslie will challenge us to address the relationship between the stuff in our head and what's under our bed, our attachment to our belongings and provide us with tips, tools, and techniques for letting go, scaling back, and making sure that our stuff truly matters.

Make Order Out Of Your Chaos – Tips and Tales From the Trenches - When we organize our environment, we kick our life into high gear. We accomplish more than we even knew we wanted to. Leslie will challenge your audience to address their hidden organizational and time- management demons with her "Triple Ts" – tips, tools and techniques – and put them on track for getting AND staying organized!
